My name is Hannah Geddes and I live just outside London in the UK. I've been involved with crafting for many years and after discovering Zentangle some time ago I decided I wanted to become a Certified Zentangle teacher 'CZT'.

Since then I've taught a wide variety of students and my favourite moment is when a student, who thought she wouldn't be able to draw completes a class and says "Wow, did I draw that? I can't believe I actually drew that".

I use Mandalas for my own personal meditation, having several on the go at one time. To develop my skills, I am going to Nepal next year to advance my Mandala Arts with a Buddha. I am also involved with Bullet Journaling or BUJO for short and many other arts and crafts.

I work for "Tangledweb Creations" which designs, creates and manufactures innovative products, storage solutions and accessories for Zentangle, Mandala Arts and Bullet Journaling crafts. These products have been designed for those with dexterity issues, those who travel, as well as other CZT's and artists. These products are aimed at assisting people to create and display beautiful pieces of art. We supply a range of teaching aids, storage solutions, kits and picture frames. Tangledweb Creations also supply products which include other arts and crafts including mixed media, card making and rock art. Tangledweb Creations are committed to developing and supplying new products to the market.

Several months ago, Tangledweb Creations set up their own art school called "The School of Arts and Crafts" in the UK. It is an independent training school which will offer a wide selection of Arts and Craft classes/courses for individual students, groups and businesses. We offer a variety of classes in Zentangle, Mandala Arts, Bullet Journaling, Rock Art and many more. The School of Arts and Crafts has a supply list including all the necessary materials for each class and for mail order.

I have written several magazine and newspaper articles, children's books of which two have already been released. In August 2017, the next six will be available.

I'm actively involved with the European group of CZT's and co-hosted our retreat in Spain. I look forward to being involved with many more events in the future.
